IN CELEBRATION of the thirteenth anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilder entertained at an elaborate supper and dance on Thursday evening at their home in College Hills. The Wilder home was transformed into a bower of ferns, palms and flowers of many varieties. The guests were seated at three large tables that were beautifully decorated with roses, and the hand-painted cards marking each place were copies of famous French artists. Each of the guests was presented with a souvenir of the occasion. These lent much to the mirth of the evening, as did the "play" wedding ceremony that was performed, the contracting parties being the host and hostess, and at the conclusion of which Mr. Wilder presented his wife with a handsome ring.
